

WILL FREE SUBWAY
OF FIRE CAR PERILInterborough to Install
All-Steel Equipment in Nine Months.WILL OBEY ORDER.
SHONTS TELLS P. S. C.Says Company Has Found Way to Do This, but Will Stand on Contract Rights.

All wooden cars now in use in the subway are to be removed within the next nine months. The Interborough Rapid Transit Company, through its president, notified the Public Service Commission yesterday that it would comply with the commission's steel car order, made following the fire at Fifth Street January 6.

President Shonks's letter was read at a meeting of the commission. In the Tribune Building, about the time that another wooden car fire blocked the subway at Bleecker Street. The letter stated:

"We have worked out the necessary legal procedure, which will enable us to comply with the terms of the order, and you are hereby notified that it is the intention of this company to remove the composite cars from operation in the subway, subject to our rights and the city's obligations under Contract Nos. 1 and 3."

"Our rights and the city's obligations under Contract Nos. 1 and 3," was explained by James L. Quackenbush, counsel for the Interborough, as meaning that "the company was certainly going to stand on its rights, but that it was not going to stand on its rights to withdraw the cars to which the Public Service objected." As to just what rights were referred to, Mr. Quackenbush was not willing to be more definite.

There was talk about City Hall yesterday that the Interborough might attempt to make the city pay for the new cars, but this was not considered probable by one of the members of the Public Service Commission, after he had refreshed his memory by reading over the contracts covering the operation of the subway and the "I" lines.

There are now 477 composite cars in use in the subway. The number was decreased yesterday by one as a result of the accident at the Bleecker Street station.

The next meeting of the Public Service Commission will be held on Monday. The next day, Tuesday, they will go to Albany to answer the charges made against them.

FIRE SCARE IN SUBWAY

Passengers Jump from Train
as It Fills with Smoke.

Subway passengers had one more fire scare yesterday afternoon. A short circuit in the motorman's box of an express train, between Astor Place and Grand Street, filled the train with smoke. More than two hundred passengers clambered out of another express train and crossed the tracks to safety.

A car on the Brooklyn train was speeding southward about 1:30 p. m. when the fuse blew out. There was little fear among the passengers of this train, as the wrecking crew set at once to work with sand boxes and put out the fire.

Behind this train was a South Ferry express. When the smoke reached them the passengers became very nervous. They were told that the train was open the doors were so insistent the requests were complied with. Men picked women down, and all of them picked their way gingerly across the tracks to the Fulton Street station.

After fifteen minutes the fire was extinguished and the Brooklyn express proceeded on its way. The train, which had started to leave for Fulton Street, another blow-out occurred. The passengers had to be discharged, and the train switched to the northbound tracks and taken to the yards.

PAST PAYS WHEN
SUNDAY PREACHES

and his work. This applies to the ministers friendly to his efforts, as well as to the few who do not think the Gospel is flexible enough to permit of its teaching in the Sunday class.

"The subject is too big and conditions are still too vague to talk about with assurance now," they say.

They will tell you, though, that Sunday is driving the people into the churches. "Driving" is the word. It is the statement of practically every sincere person who has joined a church since he or she heard the former Tabernacle. These cards are sent to the ministers in whose parish the "converts" live. The clergymen are asked to investigate and to work on the men or women who are registered at the Sunday meeting.

Here are the results of two investigations. One minister received eighteen cards. Investigating, he found that four of the persons who registered gave fictitious names and addresses—"hit the trail" as a joke; ten were regular members of the clergyman's church, and the other four had attended church only occasionally, but wanted to enter the church.

The second minister received eleven cards. Three of the persons—three women—were not known to the clergyman. One of the others is still attending the church she joined after conversion; one of the others lasted three weeks; the other has not been seen in that church since the fourth Sunday.

This leaves no argument. If through the coming of Billy Sunday to Philadelphia the actual conversion of one person was accomplished, his work could be called successful. He has won over hundreds—the ministers admit it. He has sent to the churches of the very clergymen who oppose him just as many worshipping men who have stood behind his campaign. He has induced thought, as Mr. Johnson said, and that thinking has added to the church roster.

Advertising men say that the "follow-up" system is the only effective way of getting results in a campaign. What does Philadelphia purpose doing?

This question was answered promptly. Sunday's work is to be the only evangelic campaign waged there. There will be no follow-up.

"The prominent men of Philadelphia," brought Sunday here because they thought he was the one man who could achieve a real moral uplift. We have no reason to complain. Sunday's work is to be the only evangelic campaign waged there. There will be no follow-up.

RELIGIOUS NEWS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God.—1 John v. 1. It is on the fact of Christ we build. I know there are people to-day who say it does not matter about the historic Jesus; the great thing is Christ in the heart. Now, it is impossible for you or me to live the Christian life without believing in the historic Jesus. I believe that Jesus was born into this world, lived in this world, died here for my sin, and was raised from the dead. I have no difficulty in believing that He came into the world in an extraordinary way when I find that He went out of it in an extraordinary way. Our faith is built on the fact of Jesus Christ.—Rev. W. Y. Fullerton.

METHODIST CONFERENCE
MEETS HERE NEXT WEEK

Bishop Earl Cranston Will Preside Over Gathering in Park Avenue Church—Radical Changes in Denomination Talked Of.

Methodists of New York are demanding radical changes in management of their church affairs, and basing their demand upon a statement, made by them, that New York Methodism is not holding its own. Their annual conference meets next week in the Park Avenue Church, Eighty-sixth Street and Third Avenue, where men, women, book committee and other organizations have sessions. Only ministers sit in the conference session itself.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, resident bishop here, is ill at a sanatorium at Clifton Springs, and has been there for a fortnight. It is claimed by his friends that the New York climate does not agree with him, and that some of the general conference meets, to have him transferred to Washington and a new bishop assigned here.

Bishop Earl Cranston, resident of Washington, will preside over the forthcoming New York conference next week.

Carl H. Fowler, son of a Methodist bishop and prominent Methodist leader of New York, has just issued a statement concerning Methodist conditions from the point of view of a layman. He says in part:

"Our churches are being crowded out of the downtown districts; they are being crowded into the uptown districts. They are scarcely holding their own in numbers, finances or in property. Year by year it is more difficult for them to gain new members and hold old ones, more difficult for them simply to keep alive. Yet the city around them is growing in every way. There is hardly a Methodist church in New York that is financially strong enough to be able to purchase present properties if they had not been handed down to them from a preceding generation.

"The high cost of church membership, due to many from membership, and from a business point of view this high cost is in part due to the fact that churches are kept closed and are unproductive about nine-tenths of the time."

Mr. Fowler advocates for Methodists of New York a few strong centers, and these not churches of the present type, but business blocks, built on the ruins of old churches. He mentions the John Street Church as one possible site, and Park Avenue, where the conference meets, for another. He would have others on the West Side and in Harlem.

There is prejudice against our present type of churches. They are felt not to be fulfilling their purpose. Methodism in America loses 50,000 members a year from removal. People go from one city to another and fail to carry their membership with them. They are lost for good. There should be some system of central control for properties.

The New York City Society and the Metropolitan Methodist Federation will, it is understood, ask the approaching conference and all Methodist churches to name the churches to be taken into consideration. One proposition is to change boundaries that metropolitan New York is held in one conference. Another is to have one conference for the entire city. But, when need be, with power to act. Another plan is for greater supervision by law of Methodist properties, including trustees.

It is reported that the Rev. Dr. W. M. Tippy, of Cleveland, for its vacant pulpit. The matter is said to have been proposed to him, without definite answer as yet.

The Rev. Dr. George C. Fort, of Hanson Place Church, Brooklyn, one of the largest Methodist centers, will go to the First Church, Jamaica, and be succeeded by the Rev. Dr. C. W. Flint, of New York Avenue Church, Brooklyn, has accepted election as president of Wesleyan College, Winnipeg, and there will be a vacancy in the New York Avenue Church has above one thousand members.

Concerning Methodist prospects outside of New York City, Mr. Fowler comments. His statement by mention of the fact that last year American Methodism grew in numbers faster than the population, its figures heading all other Protestant bodies.
